Chile Rushes Aid to 20 Quake-Stricken Cities

SEARCH DEBRIS FOR BODIES OF 8,000 VICTIMS

Rescuers Fear Toll From Earth Shocks Might Go Higher, With Thousands Injured.

ENTIRE TOWNS IN RUINS

Plane Survey Shows Chillan, Concepcion Hardest Hit by Destructive Temblors.

(By International News Service)

SANTIAGO, Chile—As the Chilean government mobilized the nation's resources to aid six provinces devastated by the worst earthquake in Chilean history, officials estimated that the death toll would be 8,000 with about 20,000 injured.

Twenty cities and towns were destroyed in the quake which caused enormous property damage over a wide area.

Although unofficial reports trickled out of the affected areas in the south indicated that the death toll might mount as high as 15,000 with twice that number injured, government circles insisted on the lower estimate. More than 300 bodies have already been recovered.

Worst In History.

Concepcion, the southern capital of Chile, the town of Chillan, with 40,000 inhabitants, numerous other important centers and broad areas of rich farm lands, all were laid waste by the shocks that threw thousands of persons into panic and visited upon the nation the worst earthquake in its history.

In the town of Chillan, which was virtually wiped out, there appeared no doubt that at least 2,000 or 3,000 persons died, including 300 who found a common tomb when the municipal theater collapsed.

In Concepcion, according to naval advices, the death roll may reach around 2,000, with perhaps another 2,000 seriously injured.

Most of the information reaching Santiago came from amateur radio operators near the affected zones and was conflicting in character. For this reason all official estimates of the final total were being held up pending a further check.

All advices received here indicated the quakes had caused a major panic.

Describes Horror Left By Quakes In Chilean City

Writer, Arriving at Scene By Plane, Says 400 Buried In Wreckage Left By Collapse of Two Theaters.

By CHARLES SERRY, United Press Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1939, by United Press)

CHILLAN, Chile—In the debris-filled streets, amid the ruined buildings and homes of this earthquake wrecked city, a wild-eyed man, his facial muscles working, ran up and shouted in my face: "I lost four children!" His voice rose to a piercing scream: "But I'm alive. . . . I'm alive."

The roofs of the two theaters had fallen in and the walls had fallen in on top of them. Both were filled with men, women and children Tuesday night when the quake rocked the earth. I was informed that there were 200 dead persons buried in the ruins of each one.

Rigs Up Casket.

A man was poking distractedly in a heap of ruins, now and then pulling out a board. He was asked what he was doing. He pointed to a partly finished box, crudely constructed. Then he pointed to the headless corpse of a woman. He was making a casket in which to bury her. The woman had been his wife.

Everywhere, men and women were wandering about in the ruins. Most of them seemed out of their

HELD SOLVENT

Fidelity Association Scores in Arbiter's Report.

WHEELING, W. Va.—(AP)—A court-appointed arbiter reported today that the Fidelity Investment association, a nation-wide investment loan organization, was solvent and recommended dismissal of receivership proceedings.

The arbiter, Charles P. Mead of Wheeling, declared a 10-day investigation of the firm's finances by 11 independent auditors and opposing counsel disclosed the association's solvency.

Mead said that since the petition, filed by a group of the association's contract holders in Pennsylvania, was "predicated upon an allegation of insolvency" he advised dismissal.

Federal Judge William E. Baker, who previously had refused to grant or dismiss the petition pending a report on finances, took no immediate action upon the 56-page summary.

Scores Ashland Treasurer As He Appears In Court

ASHLAND—Arraigned before Common Pleas Judge C. C. Chapman this morning on indictments charging embezzlement of funds, H. C. Faber, Ashland county treasurer, and his son, Olen R. Faber, his former deputy, were granted more time to study their indictments and map their pleas. Appearance bonds were set at $1,000 each.

Judge Chapman granted the extensions on the request of counsel for Faber and his son, and then scored the treasurer for permitting the alleged mis-use of funds in his office and failing to discharge his son when he learned of the shortage.

"You Faber) knew long before the grand jury was called to investigate this matter that there was a shortage in your office and who was responsible for it," Judge Chapman said.

Urging speed in disposing of the cases, Judge Chapman added that "when public money is involved, we can't be too prompt in disposing of cases."

Indicted at a special session of the county grand jury shortly before noon yesterday, Faber and his son were served with indictments yesterday afternoon. Joint indictments on three counts were returned against the pair. The indictments charge embezzlement of public monies; forgery of an authentic matter of public nature, and destruction of a public record.

Faber continued on duty today in his office.

Stadium Debt Paid, Athletic Board Now Has Money in Bank

They burned the mortgage, figuratively, on the Mansfield High football homestead today.

For today, Mansfield high holds clear title to Stadium field, and the athletic board of the school has money in the bank.

The 1938 football season paid off all outstanding debts of the athletic association, including a $1,242 payment on the stadium, and left the association "in the black."

F. e home games last season did the trick—but of these five the Massillon game did the most, providing a gate of $3,083.

All this was revealed at the meeting of the high school athletic board at the school yesterday.

The board's annual report showed receipts of $5,879, and expenses of $2,800, for a net profit of $3,079. That permitted the board to clear up the final installment of stadium debt, $1,836, put $1,000 in the bank and leave $243 for current operating expenses.

The stadium was built in 1927, at a cost of about $35,000, and has been retired from receipts of football games played in it.

Yesterday's final payment was made to the high school activities fund, from which it had been borrowed. Originally, the stadium

Sherwood Names Druggist as Ohio's Pension Chief.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Thomas W. McCaw, Dennison druggist today was named to succeed Wray Bevens of West Union as chief of the state division of aid for aged.

McCaw, 46-year-old former state commander of the American Legion and a field artillery captain in the World war, was appointed by Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood to handle the administration of pensions to 112,000 indigent aged.

The aid for aged post pays $4,800 a year.

Bevens resigned several days ago. He was appointed Sept. 23, 1938, following the resignation of Henry J. Berrodin, who quit after a dispute with former Gov. Martin L. Davey over administration of the division.

CALLS HEALTH HEADS TO LIVE WITHIN BUDGET

Mayor, Irked by $7,000 in Unpaid 1938 Bills, Says He'll 'Lay Down Law.'

COVERS INDIGENT CASES

Hunter to Tell Rehder and Aid That Department Must Stay Within Allocation.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter prepared today to call in health department heads to "lay down the law" to them on expenditures as he disclosed that $7,000 more had been spent during 1938 than was allocated for the hospitalization of indigents.

He announced the conference as he studied a pile of unpaid bills which he said represented approximately $7,000 for hospitalization, ambulance service and burials for indigents.

$14,000 Allotted.

This amount, he said, was over and above the $14,000 allocated for that purpose in 1938, and that drastic action would have to be taken by health officials to "stay within the 1939 allocation."

The mayor said he plans to call a meeting, probably this afternoon, at which time he and Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist would meet with Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, his assistant, Dr. Walter Meek and Patrolman Frend C. Boals, who has been investigating the financial status of the cases which have come to the city's attention.

Cites Major Expense.

The major item, one which the mayor said he believed responsible for "some of the unnecessary expense" was that of persons confined to the hospital more than 10 days without the direct approval of the service director.

"Numerous cases have been confined to the hospital for long periods of time by the health officials without the director's authorization," Hunter added.

He said that he would call an immediate halt to this practice and also intended to "work out" if possible, the moving of such persons whose homes do not permit them to be properly cared for, to a convalescent home which would cost less than hospital care.

He pointed particularly to the case of two babies now in the General hospital for which the city is paying $4.25 a day (the contract rate) "simply because the parents have not properly cared for them."

"Arrangements also will be discussed concerning closer co-operation of visiting nurses and city nurses in the care of indigent cases," the mayor said.

Civil Service Board Says It Can't Hold Hearings.

COLUMBUS — (UNS) — The civil service commission today informed three suspended Ashland county highway workers that, because of a supreme court ruling, the commission has no power to hold hearings on disciplinary suspensions.

Martin L. Hetsler, Gordon Schworer and Ernest C. Pion, all of Ashland, were suspended for 30 days by Former State Highway director Ivan A. Ault. Ault said the suspensions were for disciplinary purposes.

All three of the men, the civil service commission said, testified against Ault when he was on trial on a charge of soliciting campaign funds from civil service workers. Ault was convicted

In his resignation to the board which came on the eve of the organization's annual dinner meeting, Williams said:

"My four years here have been pleasant ones and I believe that Mansfield possesses a genuinely dynamic community spirit. I have

Lutz Loses World Fair Commission Job To Republican

Representative Ralph C. Lutz, Richland county, today lost his membership on the commission directing Ohio's participation in the New York world fair.

Gov. John Bricker today reorganized the fair commission, the Associated Press reported from Columbus. He ousted Earl Hanefeld as director and replaced him with Arthur Hamilton, Republican. Hanefeld, a Democrat, was director of agriculture under former Governor Martin L. Davey. The job pays $6,000 a year.

Bricker also replaced Lutz, a Democrat, with Charles Williams, Cincinnati, Republican, and said another commission member would be replaced.

Lutz, named by Davey, went to New York with other members of the commission, viewed the fair site and recommended that Ohio should participate. Ohio appropriated $100,000 for participation.

BLOW TO HINES

Judge Rules Out Attack by Defense on Indictment.

NEW YORK — (AP) — James J. Hines, long powerful Tammany district leader, lost his effort to avoid trial on lottery conspiracy charges today when General Sessions Judge Charles C. Nott, jr., overruled a defense attack on the indictment.

Counsel for Hines contended that the conspiracy count, on which 12 other points in the indictment were based, was outlawed by the statute of limitations.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey immediately began outlining the state's case against the political leader, accused of selling his influence to the operators of the late Dutch Schultz $20,000,000-a-year Harlem policy racket.

MURDER TRIAL OPENS

MERCURY HITS 3, DUE TO CLIMB

Equals Low for 1938-39, But Reaches 17 at Noon; Friday to Be Warmer.

Slight relief from a cold wave which shoved the mercury down to three degrees above zero this morning, was in sight for the Mansfield area today.

Today's reading, which equalled the previous low temperature of the winter, came with a storm that added nearly three inches of snow to the fall that has covered the ground for two weeks.

Light snow and slightly warmer weather was forecast for tonight, with clearing and slightly warmer weather due Friday. Yesterday's temperature failed to go above 16 degrees, and the mercury stood at 17 at noon today.

General over the eastern half of the nation, the cold wave brought record low temperatures at many points. Cleveland had 9 above; Akron, 7 above; Toledo, 10, and Columbus, 14. Cincinnati was comparatively "warm" with a 26-degree reading.

The cold brought an epidemic of fires in Ohio from overheated furnaces. A $70,000 blaze hit Green Springs early today, destroying several business establishments.

An Akron apartment building was swept by fire, and in Cleveland two small children were rescued from their burning home by firemen. A fire at Chardon destroyed antiques valued at $14,000 which had been stored in a barn near the center of the town.

36 More State Highway Jobs Eliminated In Ashland Division

Murray D. Shaffer, engineer in charge of Highway Division No. 3, today announced the elimination of 36 additional positions within his department. The eliminations will be effected today and tomorrow, he said.

Shaffer's action brings to 94 the number of jobs that have been done away with in his division of the highway department, whose headquarters are in Ashland. Fifty-eight jobs were eliminated within a week after Shaffer and his superior, Highway Director Robert S. Beightler, took office.

"Not all of these eliminations will be permanent," Shaffer said today, "but not more than 10 replacements will be made, as compared with 94 lay-offs, representing a net reduction in personnel in the division of 84."

Shaffer said it was the intention of the department to operate with administration cost as low as possible, in order to permit more of the department funds to be used in actual construction.

CAPITAL FALLS TO INSURGENTS WITHOUT FIGHT

Bomb-Harassed Citizens Flock From Homes to Greet March of Franco's Troops.

STARVING GET SUPPLIES

Parading Troops Followed by Trucks Loaded With Food for Needy Populace.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(U.P.)—Reports are current in well-informed circles that Premier Benito Mussolini will soon call a four-power conference of Britain, France, Germany and Italy to discuss the Spanish and Mediterranean situations, the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Mail said today.

(By Associated Press)

HENDAYE, France (Spanish Frontier — Insurgent Generalissimo Franco's Spanish, Moorish and Italian troops marched into Barcelona at noon today with flags flying and bands playing, formally taking over Spain's largest city after two and a half years of civil war.

The government defense had collapsed. Insurgent dispatches said there was little or no resistance at the end. At last reports the government army was forming a new defense line somewhere to the north.

Greet Victorious Army.

Insurgent accounts of the entry said the people of Barcelona flocked from their houses to greet the victorious army whose planes for months had been raining death in their midst.

Today it was another thing. Dispatches reaching the border said the Barcelonans cheered wildly as the troops paraded through the palm-lined streets.

To them Franco's victory meant something other than triumph for the Insurgent cause. It meant food and an end to the bombings.

The great metropolis, with a wartime population of more than 1,500,000, was reported to have fallen at the last with no serious fighting.

It was the climax to a knock-out offensive launched Dec. 23 by the Insurgent armies from lines roughly 80 miles west of this city.

March In First.

Three picked columns of troops, which have seen some of the most savage fighting of the war—the Moroccan legionnaires, the Navarrese army corp and an Italian "Arrow" division—were given the honor of leading the entry into Barcelona.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Here is how it happened, the blow by blow description of Joe Louis' 149 seconds knockout of John Henry Lewis:

Louis hooked with his left, but missed. . . . He jabbed, crouched and jabbed. . . . Joe missed a right, and in close peppered John Henry with rights and lefts. . . . Joe clipped John with a left and right to the head . . . the challenger's legs buckled and a hard right to the jaw dropped him for a count of three. . . . Louis pressed, and in a neutral corner punished the dazed challenger with body punches and a left to the side of the head. . . . John Henry flicked a left to the body. . . . Two rights to the head dropped John Henry over the lower strand of the ropes, but he was up at two. . . . A flurry of blows climaxed with a right to the jaw and John Henry fell forward only on his back. At five the referee stepped in and stopped it.

'Wasn't Hurt', Lewis

'Why Did the Referee Stop It?' Battered Challenger Asks in Dressing Room.

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK—(INS)—There's a story behind the story of Joe Louis' 2:29-minute victory over John Henry Lewis, and if you'll step with me into the dressing rooms at Madison Square Garden, I'll give it to you.

In one, the champion sits in his royal blue dressing gown, answering a barrage of questions with the ease and assurance that comes of long practice.

Still In a Fog.

In the other, stands John Henry, an old bathrobe draped over his shoulders, his mouth hanging, and in his eyes the dazed look that bespeaks a man still in a fog.

"Why did the referee stop it?" he mumbles, and then when his handlers explain that he was absolutely helpless when Art Donovan stepped in to save him from complete annihilation, he adds, "I wasn't hurt a bit."

He keeps stumbling over that "I wasn't hurt a bit" until Dr. Bill Walker calls a halt and forces him to lie on a table.

The doctor laughs and in an aside whispers: "You know, he's half right at that. Joe anaesthetized him so perfectly with those shots to the head that John still doesn't feel anything.

"I knew what was coming when I examined them today. Joe was as cold as an undressed Eskimo while John was shivering so nervously that he actually shook my stethoscope off his chest.

"Right then I knew he was a goner. He knew it and I think Joe Louis knew it.

"No man living can stand up under those terrific punches but I must say that most of his opponents are in half a coma before he throws a punch.

"Some of them may be as good as John Henry undoubtedly is, but an unconscious fear seems to paralyze them when they see him."

That's the way John Henry went to his doom, in much the same daze as walking to the chair.

And don't think the champ wasn't well aware of the fact.

"Sure," he admitted, "I knew he was awful nervous when I shook hands with him at the weigh-in and he was worse in the ring.

Right Started It.

"Yeh, a right hand started him on his way. It was about as easy a fight as I ever had.

"What's that? Hit me? Naw, he never hit me once. I never even got up a good sweat.

"Sure, I'll fight anybody they get for me any time, any where."

Thus speaks a real champion.

Oh, Yeah?

NEW YORK—(INS)—Two-ton Tony Galento, the New Jersey beer barrel, summed up the Louis-Lewis fight this way today:

"Joe Louis had to take 10 punches to knock him out. I could do it with one."

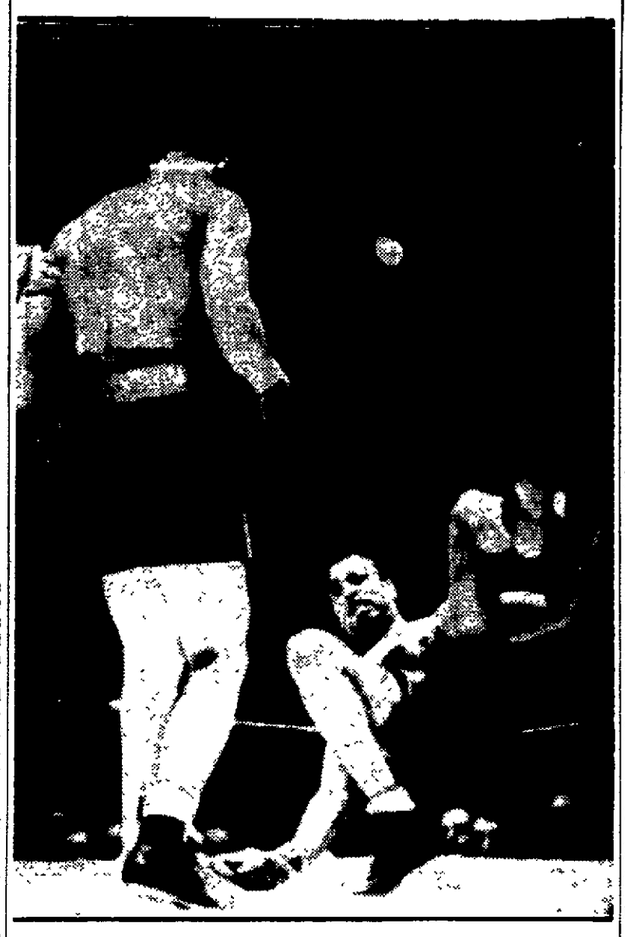
BARONS REST ON TOP OF WESTERN DIVISION

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The Cleveland Barons rested today at the top of the western division of the International-American Hockey league while the leaders of the entire league, the Philadelphia Ramblers, left town thankful that they will see no more of the Cleveland arena during the regular season.

The Ramblers absorbed a 7-to-2 licking at the hands of the Barons last night before 6,307 mightily-pleased fans. The Cleveland icers have defeated the Philadelphians four times in five starts this season.

Lewis 'Never Had a Chance'



Flooring the challenger three times, Joe Louis retained his world's heavyweight championship when Referee Art Donovan stopped the fight in the first round to save John Henry Lewis further punishment last night. The light-heavyweight champion was helpless before the ruthless onslaught of the Brown Bomber. The end came after two minutes and 29 seconds during which John Henry "never had a chance." The picture shows Lewis falling to the floor. The bout, held in Madison Square Garden, grossed more than $100,000.

Travels Greatest Distance To Fight In Golden Gloves

Beauford Glover, Former Mansfielder, to Swing Mitts In Cleveland Ring Tonight.

By GEORGE E. MOISE

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Tonight some 350 to 400 aspiring amateur fighters will storm the portals of Public hall for the first round of Cleveland's annual Golden Gloves tournament, with Beauford Glover of Crestline, formerly of Mansfield, coming the greatest distance to fight.

In some respects it also is the loudest and funniest fistic spectacle, particularly on opening night when some of the novices slightly underdone in ringcraft but right there with ambition get in and swing at each other. But there is plenty of first rate fighting, in both the open and novice divisions.

Three rings will be used tonight, and three rings Friday night for the second round. Monday two rings will be set up, and the finals a week from Friday will see but one ring. All fights are scheduled to go three rounds.

Although but one 1938 open champion, Paul Almy, 112-pounder from Mantua, is entered, there is a wealth of talent on display in the open class. Several novice champs of last year are up there, and in the 147-pound class two former champions may meet. They are Johnny Lawer, who won the novice 135-pound championship last year, and Chuck Rose, who came through as a novice welter.

Open division winners will go to San Francisco for the annual tournament of champions, and the boys are going to be striving mightily for a chance to cross the continent.

A particularly strong out of town contingent, headed by delegations from Akron and Lorain, offers a real threat to the local boys.

Ashland will send a brother team. The Ashland county seat sends the three McKinleys, Ernie, a feather in the open division, and George and Melvin, novices. George is a lightweight and Melvin a bantam.

Glover, McKinleys To Return to City.

THE filing of entries for the annual winter A. A. U. boxing show to be staged at the Friendly House Tuesday, Feb 14, is gaining momentum.

Nine of the outstanding leather slingers in north central Ohio have placed their signatures on entry blanks, and judging from the class of the boxers, the settlement card should be one of the finest ever held.

Heading the impressive list is Beauford Glover of Crestline, who Mansfield mitt fans will remember as one of the best lightweight prospects in this section. Glover, who formerly fought under the Friendly House banner, has dropped only one decision in 20 fights.

Others on the list include the McKinley brothers, Ernie and Melvin, of Ashland and Frankie Dolce of Crestline. All three fighters have appeared here on cards.

Paul Mollenkoph, 118, and Jimmy Slaughter, 147, Bucyrus, Phil Ganni, 155 of Crestline, and Frank Parker, 147, and Kennedy, 115, of Ashland, have also added their names to the list.

Martin, with 11 points, paced the Lutherans, who won the championship last season. Denzel was high for the losers with 10.

First M. E. courtmen assured themselves of a share of second place by decisioning Mayflower Congregational, 28 to 23, in a game that saw the winners lead all the way. The Methodists held a 14 to 7 advantage at the half. Fogle paced the winners with 10 points.

The defeat knocked the Mayflower quintet out of a tie for second place.

St. John Evangelical cagers came back in the fourth period to edge Episcopal, 16 to 15, with Augustine setting the pace with 12 points. Central M. E. won over Temple Emanuel, 23 to 18, in the other game.

Kayoes Lewis In First Round

17,350 Fans See Champion Knock Daylights Out of Lighter Foe In Two Minutes, 29 Seconds.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(UP)—The quest for a worthwhile opponent for Joe Louis begins to seem downright silly after last night's farce at the Garden, when the Tan Terror reduced poor John Henry Lewis to a battered, helpless hulk of a man in two minutes and 29 seconds of fighting.

When John Henry, who had optimistically been introduced only a few minutes previously as the "challenger for the world's heavyweight crown," went down under the onslaught for the third and last time, the thought must have struck every last one of the 17,350 fans in the arena that in Joe Louis there was a fighter who stood alone.

The Brown Bomber, defending his title for the fifth time, was not struck a real blow as he shuffled in and knocked the daylights out of Lewis. Not a glove had yet been laid on Joe when Referee Arthur Donovan lifted the glassy-eyed John Henry to his legs and yelled to the knockdown judge "That's enough."

Not Badly Hurt?

Lewis, who spotted the great champion 20 pounds, received as terrible a beating in the fraction of a round as Louis dealt out to Max Schmeling when he slaughtered the German in 2:04 last summer. Maybe it was worse, though Lewis showed no serious ill effects in his dressing room afterward and insisted he had not been badly hurt when the fight was stopped.

The spectators didn't agree with that. Some said they feared another Louis right might have broken the challenger's neck. He had been down twice before, for counts of two and three, and each time had reeled to his feet with his guard dangling uselessly. The last time Joe gave him the works, a cruel right to the jaw with all of the champ's 200 pounds behind it. Lewis was grouping around, his eyes rolling and his face contorted, when the count reached five and Donovan interceded.

It is difficult to measure a fighter's greatness, but this writer ran into three well-known fight managers on the way out and each of them said solemnly: "He would have knocked out Dempsey." They meant that they didn't think a man lived who could have lasted with the Louis of today.

The big, poker-faced colored man has become a finished fighter and a terrible man to meet in the ring. He went after Lewis last night with an awful certainty. He didn't consent to do any sparring. They had fiddled for not more than 10 seconds when Joe closed in and began ripping lefts and rights. He swung every punch viciously, the momentum carrying him half around when he missed.

The first right that hit John Henry's jaw spun him against the ropes and staggered him. He said later he never recovered from it. Within another 10 seconds the barrage sent him down. He was up, but Louis closed in and continued his merciless execution.

In the short time it lasted, Louis must have landed 40 times with all his power. To the challenger's credit it only can be said that he was game. If he had been permitted he would have taken more of it.

Who'll Be Next?

Though he has reason to be pleased with the $102,000 he took in last night, Promoter Mike Jacobs' mind must be filled with some serious doubts today about digging up that May opponent he has promised the champion. He has been seriously considering a Louis-Tony Galento fight and might even announce it before this nightfall, but it is difficult to see how he can do it without experiencing a few qualms of conscience.

The Louis of last night surely would have made a chopping block of rotund Tony.

The only possibility this writer can see is Lou Nova, providing the promising young Californian continues to develop at an even pace and remains out of Joe's reach for at least another two years.

News-Journal Bowling Tourney To Be Rolled Over Week-Ends

MANSFIELD bowlers are becoming tournament-conscious this week.

Announcement of The News-Journal Individual Sweepstakes has the boys and girls who are ardent followers of the ten-pin sport taking their bowling a bit more seriously than usual.

No tournament of the type arranged by The News-Journal has ever been attempted in the city, but it should be a success, judging from the interest aroused by the announcement.

The guaranteed first prizes of $25 and $10 for the men and women divisions, respectively, are the largest ever offered in an individual sweepstakes in the city. There will be other cash prizes for the participants.

All of the bowling will be staged on successive week-ends. The tournament opens at the Meder alleys Saturday, Feb. 4. The alleys will again be open on Sunday. The tournament will be concluded Feb. 11-12.

Each participant will bowl four games across eight alleys, the lanes being from 1 to 8, inclusive. The only cost to participate is $1.

The tournament will be conducted on a handicap basis, with the averages of the contestants to be taken from the league figures of this week.

Total scores will have no bearing on the championships. The winners will be decided on the number of pins rolled over averages.

For example, if a bowler sports a 150 average, the pins rolled over this figure will count as the score.

To be more explicit, say, for instance, that a bowler with a 150 average should roll a 700 total for the four games. This would give the bowler 100 pins as his or her score.

Five shifts will go on the boards each day, with the first scheduled at 3 p. m. on Saturdays and 2 p. m. on Sundays. Shifts will change at intervals of one hour and a half.

All members of leagues bowling at the Meder alleys are eligible except employes of the Meder Recreation alleys and The News-Journal.

FRAM

OIL AND MOTOR CLEANER

THE FRAM OIL and MOTOR CLEANER was developed by leading industrial research chemical laboratory. The oil is forced through a tightly packed roll of cotton waste. The waste is impregnated with a scientifically developed chemical compound. The waste strains out all dirt, abrasives, heavy particles of carbon, sludge and other foreign matter. The chemicals remove fine particles of carbon, that would pass through any strainer, partially oxidized particles of oil, acids and other chemical impurities.

Your Motor Need Never Wear Out

Lubrication engineers claim that if you keep your lubricating oil absolutely clean there is no reason why your motor should wear out. In practice this can never be accomplished but FRAM keeps the oil better than 98% clean and ADDS MANY THOUSANDS OF MILES TO THE MOTOR'S LIFE.

Meder, Cleckner Set Doubles League Pace

Former Adds 671 Total From 226-254-191 String; Applan, Willis Hang Up 1276 Count.

SO FAR this has been a pretty big week for Sonny Meder. On Monday, young Meder cracked the uprights for a 719 series and a new record in the Club league, and last night he led the scoring in the City Class A Doubles league with a 671 count.

Meder rolled scores of 226, 254 and 191 as he and his partner, Ed Funston, came through with a 1239, counted from three 400 games, and a clean sweep over Cliff Forsythe and Winnie Cleckner.

Next high in the individual parade was Dale Cleckner, who turned out games of 221, 224 and 224 for a 669. But Cleckner and his partner, Duke Weber, who shot a 1234, failed to win a game.

It was their misfortune to run into a 1276 total by Jack Applan and Freddy Willis. The former contributed the bigger share to the big total with a 662, which consisted of 214 and a pair of 224's.

In the other match, Joe Cheney, with a 627, and Neil Swank took three games from Cecil Burdett and Carl Heilman.

L. Pillar of the Tool Engineering club led the Westinghouse league scoring with a 616, climaxed with a 245.

800 JOBLESS IN DISTRICT AWAIT FIRST BENEFITS

Unemployment Payments Due to Start by Feb. 6; Claims Will Be Paid by Mail.

Preparations were under way today for the payment of benefits within the next 10 days to more than 800 unemployed in Richland and Morrow counties, Maurice K. Wells, manager of the Mansfield office of the Ohio Unemployment Compensation commission, said.

Wells explained that benefit payments will be mailed directly from the commission office in Columbus and that first checks probably will be received by claimants here by Feb. 6.

"The commission already has set up a procedure whereby a designated number of claims will be paid on specified days of the week," Wells said. "After the unemployed worker's claim is finally approved and the recipient is given a certain 'payday,' the warrant will be drawn as of that day each week through the maximum of 16 weeks."

With each warrant will be a form which is a "weekly payment on order for benefits," which must be detached and brought by the claimant on his next week appointment date to the local office on North Diamond street in order to renew his claim.

Renews Claim Weekly.

"This plan provides an accurate control over each account," Wells said. "In effect, the claimant renews his approved claim each week for the 16 weeks of benefit period, providing that he is continuously out of work for that period."

Benefits are to be paid to eligible persons who have worked any 20 weeks in 1938, provided that they were covered by the insurance plan in the particular type of work in which they were engaged.

They must file, however, a claim for the benefits at the UCC branch office here before they will be eligible to receive the benefits.

Those who are eligible under total unemployment will receive one-half of their average weekly wage, but not more than $15 a week for 16 weeks in one year. Eligibles for partial unemployment benefits, will receive from 10 to 40 per cent of their average weekly wage.

PRESSURE LIGHT AS STOCKS TAKE STEP BACKWARD

Traders Hold Commitments to Minimum as They Await European Developments.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—While stocks generally took a step backward in today's market, pressure was notably light against the majority.

Most traders, although seemingly less nervous over European developments, inclined to keep commitments at a minimum pending possible international repercussions following the fall of Barcelona to the Franco forces.

Shares giving ground included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, Westinghouse and DuPont.

Bonds eased and commodities were mixed. Foreign securities markets pointed lower.

Noted was the summary of the Engineering News-Record placing construction awards this week at 11 per cent below the previous week and 2½ per cent under the corresponding period a year ago.

Some comfort was found in the Dun & Bradstreet figures disclosing bank clearings for the country as a whole, for the week ended yesterday, topped the comparable 1938 week by 3.2 per cent.

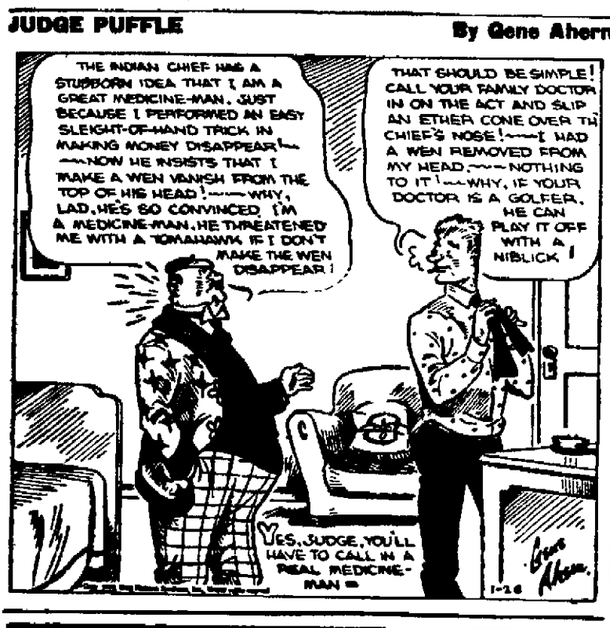
JUDGE PUFFLE By Gene Ahern



THE INDIAN CHIEF HAS A STUBBORN IDEA THAT I AM A GREAT MEDICINE-MAN. JUST BECAUSE I PERFORMED AN EASY SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICK IN MAKING MONEY DISAPPEAR! — NOW HE INSISTS THAT I MAKE A WEN VANISH FROM THE TOP OF HIS HEAD! — WHY, LAD, HE'S SO CONVINCED I'M A MEDICINE-MAN, HE THREATENED ME WITH A TOMAHAWK IF I DON'T MAKE THE WEN DISAPPEAR!
THAT SHOULD BE SIMPLE! CALL YOUR FAMILY DOCTOR IN ON THE ACT AND SLIP AN ETHER CONE OVER TH CHIEF'S NOSE! — I HAD A WEN REMOVED FROM MY HEAD. — NOTHING TO IT! — WHY, IF YOUR DOCTOR IS A GOLFER, HE CAN PLAY IT OFF WITH A NIBLICK!
YES, JUDGE, YOU'LL HAVE TO CALL IN A REAL MEDICINE-MAN =

Writer Describes Scenes in Chile Where Earth Shocks Killed Thousands.

heads. Some prayed. Some wept.

Every street was choken with debris. Entire blocks were uneven masses of debris with not a building standing.

I was told that of the city's 40,000 inhabitants, 10,000 had been killed and 10,000 more were wounded or missing.

I came here in a bombing plane of the Chilean army and I wore the regulation flier's helmet. This attracted attention to me as I wandered about, and survivors, assuming that I was returning soon to Santiago, pressed messages upon me to carry to relatives there. I accepted more than 50 of these for delivery.

We flew over Concepcion, the third largest city in Chile, before landing at Chillan. From far off we saw a great column of flame and smoke. An entire city block was on fire. About six city blocks in all appeared to have been destroyed, but the historic cathedral and the buildings of the ancient university, which gives Concepcion its name of "The Athens of Chile," seemed intact.

Knox County Man Get's Hero's Award For Blaze Rescue

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— A bronze medal from the Carnegie hero fund commission went today to William E. Ackerman, 41-year-old merchant of Mt. Vernon, O., who saved three children from a burning home last Aug. 6.

The commission's report on Ackerman's heroism stated that the children, Eugene K., James L. and Joretta Looker, aged five, four and three, respectively, were trapped in their ground-floor bedroom when fire broke out in an adjoining room.

Crawling partly through the bedroom window, Ackerman twice seized a child from the smoke-filled room. He then crawled entirely into the room, holding his breath, and found the little girl on the floor. She already was so badly burned that when he grasped her arm the flesh sloughed off.

Confused by the heat and smoke Ackerman managed to get a firm grip on the girl's leg and crept backward until he and she were pulled from the window.

All the children recovered. Ackerman was disabled for eight days due to a lung inflammation.

CHEER TROOPS IN BARCELONA

Bomb-Harassed Citizens Flock to Streets as Insurgents Take Over Capital.

Tibidabo, rising on the western outskirts, fell before the entry began.

Insurgent advices said that Montjuich and Tibidabo, where a United States consular office had been situated, were taken after a brief attack. It was indicated there was only slight resistance at those points.

Starts March To City.

Their fall was the signal for the start of the march into the heart of Barcelona.

Insurgent reports said the occupation should be completed by nightfall and the city formally proclaimed under Generalissimo Franco's rule.

Franco's high command had mapped out a plan for the methodical occupation of the city after driving out its armed defenders and reducing its civilian population to submission with bombs and shells.

Meanwhile ministers of the Republican government had fled to northern Gerona province, near the French border, where they were spread through several towns.

The government's supporters, however, insisted the war would continue both there and in the central zone, where the government still holds Madrid and Valencia.

Truckloads of provisions rumbled up behind the Barcelona army of occupation to bring relief to the population after months of privation inflicted by the insurgent air and sea blockade of the capitals.

Population Starving.

In the last turbulent days, especially since insurgent troops reached the outskirts on Jan. 24, the city's supply lines were reported to have failed completely, leaving a half starved population.

A great part of the city's inhabitants appeared to have remained stoically to await the arrival of the conquerors.

However, well to the northeast columns of refugees fleeing the insurgent conquest swarmed toward the French frontier along the road hugging the Mediterranean coast, the last avenue open to traffic. Even that route was under the bombs of the Insurgent air force.

Franco was understood to be planning to move his capital to Barcelona, Spain's greatest city, from the smaller city of Burgos, which has been his base.

In the fastnesses of the mountainous northeastern corner of Spain, just across the frontier from sympathtic France, government Premier Juan Negrin and his ministers were reported intending to open up new defense operations along a hastily thrown up line.

Terrific Bombardment.

Seeking to complete their ring of steel about the capital, the insurgents deployed around the base of Mount Tibidabo, 1,745-peak northwest of Barcelona, after their artillery and warplanes had given the defenders a terrific bombardment.

Resorts, restaurants and picnic grounds on the broad top of the peak, commanding coastal roads to the north, were reported completely razed by the fierce attacks.

Bonnet Warns Italy To Keep 'Hands Off.'

PARIS—(AP)—Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet gave Italy a solemn warning today to keep hands off the French colonial empire, while south of France's Spanish frontier Italian troops were aiding the insurgent conquest of Barcelona.

"France cannot permit anyone to touch the empire she founded with her blood," Bonnet declared in the crowded cheering chamber of deputies.

His speech concluded two weeks of foreign affairs debate just after the government called 80,000 young men, six months ahead of schedule, for service during the coming months when Italy's demands for a share of the French empire are expected to reach a climax.

AID RUSHED TO RUINED CITIES

Chile Organizes Help for 20 Towns Wrecked by Quake; Toll Hits 8,000.

turned from Chillan reported that city totally destroyed. He estimated 5,000 were killed and 10,000 injured there alone, adding 300 perished when the municipal theater collapsed.

The airman said he also observed huge cracks in the city's main streets.

The towns of Parral and Canqueras also were totally wrecked, he said, and the death toll in these centers was not known.

Official quarters, however, gave out the pilot's information "with reservations," expressing the opinion the flier had no means of checking up on stories told him by panic-stricken inhabitants of the devastated areas.

The Chilean government rushed to aid the injured and homeless. In Concepcion, where some reports said 2,000 lives were lost, fires were reported razing buildings which withstood the quake.

Martial law was imposed on the earthquake region, but troops and other rescue workers found it almost impossible to recover bodies or release the injured at once because the streets were filled with tons of debris and light, power and drainage facilities were wrecked and worthless.

er achievements and accomplishments.

Williams came to Mansfield from Warren four and one-half years ago where he had been secretary of the Retail Merchants division and assistant secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

He entered the civic-commercial organization field in 1928 when he joined the staff of the Community Service corporation in Kansas City in which capacity he served Chambers of Commerce and Community Fund organizations in Pennsylvania and New York. Prior to that he was in newspaper and advertising agency work.

Under Williams' guidance during the past four years the Mansfield chamber's membership has been increased from 153 to over 600 and is now recognized as one of the strongest civic commercial organizations in the nation in its population bracket.

Chief among the movements which the chamber has either sponsored or has been directly connected with during the four and one-half years of Williams' secretaryship are:

The Exposition of Progress, staged in the spring of 1935.

A series of 60 industrial exhibits throughout downtown Mansfield.

Placing of new street signs throughout the city.

The campaign for a bond issue to construct the city's $331,000 sewage treatment plant.

Completion of plans to bring to the city the Dominion Electric and Manufacturing company.

Bringing to the city the Art Rattan works.

The two plants have a combined annual payroll of over $600,000.

Launching of a movement which resulted in the establishment of a board of park commissioners in Mansfield.

The Woodland water improvement.

Preliminary work in connection with the rehabilitation of the Pennsylvania railroad depot.

Annual sponsored fire prevention and safety campaigns.

Made Use of 'Movies'.

Williams has also gained widespread recognition for his use of motion pictures to sell economic factors of community to the community itself.

"Mansfield Marches On," one of Williams films has been shown to more than 6,000 Mansfielders and before economics classes in several colleges.

He also received credit for one of his booklets on "Petty Rackets," which deals with the suppression of soliciting and promotional schemes of doubtful value.

Williams is vice president of the Ohio Commercial Secretaries association and a member of several committees of the National Association of Commercial Organization secretaries.

He and Mrs. Williams live at 381 Overlook road. A daughter, Jane, is a student at Miami university.

GET PROMISE OF ROAD FUNDS

Townships Assured of $2,000 Each From County for 1939 Program.

County commissioners today had promised each of the county's 18 townships a maximum of $2,000 this year for road building and maintenance, but the commissioners predicted that not more than half of the townships would plan construction work in 1939 to use their allocation.

The proposal was made yesterday to trustees from five townships in the southern half of the county, four of which will do construction work this year. Others, however, are expected to reduce road work because of limited funds, commissioners said.

Worthington township trustees are scheduled to meet with the commissioners Saturday morning on their road program, and trustees from six other townships will confer with county officials Friday, Feb. 3.

The county's offer to townships includes grading of not more than two miles of roads at a cost not to exceed $1,000 a mile. The township must prepare the right-of-way for the roads, clearing shrubbery and trees from the roadsides.

At yesterday's conference with trustees at the courthouse, commissioners and the county engineer learned that Troy, Washington, Perry and Jefferson townships will sponsor improvements this year. The plans include:

Washington township—Improvement of two miles of the Kochheiser road; Jefferson township—two miles of the Stoffer road and one mile of the Clever road; Perry township—1.6 miles of the Painter road and Huntsman road and maintenance of 1½ miles of the Darlington north road; Troy township—Fox road and King's Corner road, totaling 1½ miles.

The schedule to road conferences at the courthouse Feb. 3 includes Sandusky township, 9 a. m.; Springfield, 10 a. m.; Madison, 11 a. m.; Mifflin, 1 p. m.; Sharon, 2 p. m., and Jackson, 3 p. m.

CHAPTER IX

Kurt, exhausted, overslept. Not even the brief ringing of the telephone when Don called disturbed him. Awakening with a start, he looked at his watch, reached for the telephone, and called the hotel. But Don and Nancy and Alix had left. He did not have time to get to the station.

Breakfasting by the window, looking down upon Fifth avenue, he thought of Gina. And as Alix had said, it was not the Gina of last night that had slipped her cool brown hand into his of whom he thought but of the laughing Gina of two years ago who had loved him passionately. He had tried to build a wall between himself and his memories but this morning he knew that the wall had been made of flimsy stuff. He had loved her so. He had never loved anyone else. Memories—Gina in his arms, her soft, warm mouth against his, her lovely voice saying, "Oh, Kurt, I love you so terribly," and the places they had been together. . . .

He thought, "She loved me. I know that." Perhaps she loved him still and regretted what had happened. Last night, despite the lightness of her voice, her eyes had asked eager questions. He was ready to forgive her. Don't be a sap. Don't be a fool. She threw you down for a man with more money and then didn't marry him after all. She humiliated you and put you through hell. But last night—last night she had said, "Don't go back tomorrow."

The phone rang. He let it ring for a few minutes and then picked it up.

"You didn't go back!" Gina cried delightfully. "I was so afraid you had."

"Hello, Gina. I didn't go back because I overslept."

Then she said, "Please come to see me today, Kurt. You slept but I didn't. I was so miserable. You'll have to bend your pride to come, but I know . . . . after all that's happened. But, you see, there are so many things you don't know. You wouldn't let me explain that last night. You were so angry . . . ."

Frowning, he thought, "No matter how much you tell yourself you won't go, you will. You'll hate yourself but you'll go just the same."

Gina said, "I've got to see you, darling. There's so much I have to say to you. Please."

That afternoon her maid opened the door of her new apartment and he stepped inside.

Gina was wearing a gray tailored suit, a black blouse, and a large diamond pin in the collar of the blouse. Her small black hat, black gloves, and black bag lay on a chair beside the magnificent silver foxes. She looked slim and perfect as always, he thought.

The living-room had lemon colored walls and a deep green rug. The furniture was modern. Venetian blinds were drawn to the sill, shutting out the bright afternoon sun, making the room dim and cool and intimate. It was a perfect setting for Gina; she knew all about perfect settings.

She came forward and gave him her hands.

"Aren't you glad you overslept, Kurt? Please say you're glad."

"But I don't think I am, Gina." Liar. He was glad. Had she been crying. He knew how her eyes looked when she had been crying. She seemed a little nervous.

They sat on the brown divan and the maid brought in cocktails. A new maid, he noted. She had never kept them long. And for some time she asked questions about what he had been doing and the people he had been seeing. When he talked, her eyes searched his eyes and he knew she wasn't listening, wasn't interested and that she was asking questions just to make conversation.

"How was Havana?" he asked finally.

"Oh, marvelous. Amusing people and yachts and parties. Gambling and the races. You know." Then slowly her black eyes, avoiding him until now looked into his. "Do you hate me, Kurt? I had to see you to tell you about Russell Emory, why I didn't marry him. Oh, I know it was a year ago but . . . ."

"I'd rather not hear about that, Gina. Confess it to somebody else if confession will make you feel better." A man doesn't want to hear about his successor. He knew Emory, rich and middle-aged. And for a month last year the thought of Gina in Emory's arms had been like a knife through him.

Gina was tense. "I didn't marry him because I discovered I was still in love with you! Do you want to hear that or—or don't you care? Was it the girl with whom he had been last night?

Her voice broke. She arose, walked away to the table and stood with her back to him and pressed her hand against her mouth. She couldn't let him go now, she thought! And she was glad she didn't want to know about Russell and her, that Russell had tired of her. And Kurt must never know that she had almost no money left, no work in sight, and that her screen tests had been frighteningly bad. No, Kurt who associated her with the glamor of the theater and who had seen her always at her best must never know how frightened she was of a future without fame and money and that last night when she had seen him, she had thought, "He's the answer to MY problem.

There were no tears in her eyes when she turned and looked at him.

"Kurt, I've learned a lot in the last year. Perhaps it wasn't until we—we broke up that I thought of the things you told me, and valued them. You're really the only high-principaled man I've ever known well. And for some time now I've thought that I've no more to give to the theater than a million other girls. I've probably less because I know what it's all about and I'm tired of it, sick of it!" That was only partly true. Tired of wondering what the next play would be and if it would be a success, tired of wearying rehearsals and misunderstandings with producers and directors and playwrights. But not tired, never tired of applause and admiration, her name in lights, her photograph in magazines, and friends saying, "Gina, you were wonderful!" Her voice appealed. "Do you know why I can see it all now, why I was really bored in Cuba, and why I came back before the others? Because of you, Kurt. Because I'm still in love with you, dorling."

DID she love him? He was the finest man she'd ever known. Why couldn't she love him? Because she had been in love so many times in her life and with each man she had left part of herself so that there was little for Kurt who had loved her more than any man. But in honesty she knew she would never love completely again and that the desire for fame and money was the dominating force of her life. Now she was running out, taking the easiest way out because she was afraid. . . .

Kurt said, "You're shaking, Gina. Come back and sit down."

"I said I was in love with you. Doesn't that mean anything to you? Oh, I know I treated you shamefully but are you going to let that . . . . when I'm so sorry and ashamed?" Quickly she came back to him, sat on the low round white stool and lifted her eyes. "Have you forgotten everything? We gave each other so much to remember. Remember my dressing-room? That's where we met. You filled it with flowers every night after that. Remember all the places we dined and danced, and the week-ends that summer and winter? She took his hand and her tears fell on it. "It could be like that again if you could forget this past year!"

Kurt leaned over her. His eyes were miserable. "I can't bear to see you like this, Gina!"

"Crying? You've a right to see me crying and humble. You've said so many times that you didn't understand me. You understand me now, don't you? You can look straight through me. Do you love me, Kurt?"

He took her by the shoulders and drew her to her feet and put his arms around her. He loved her. His pride had been trampled upon and his love given back but still he loved her. Why? There was no answer to that. Why do you love people anyway? Why could not it be young Alix with her sweetness and ideals and the star dust in her eyes? But it was Gina who clung to him now . . . .

"I asked you if you loved me, Kurt."

His smile was grim. "That seems to be a habit I can't overcome, Gina."

"And you'll trust me, have faith in me? Oh, you must." She was smiling now. All tears gone. She lifted her face and kissed him. "It will be as it was before," she said.

They dined at a place where they had dined often together their first happy year. Kurt saw two men whose name had been linked with Gina's before he knew her. All through their lives he would see men who had loved her.

He stayed two days longer and she went with him to his train. He was happy, but oddly happy. Bewildered, in a fog, he thought, as he turned to her to say goodbye in the station. His friends in Baltimore would think less of him for this. They'd call him a fool behind his back.

SWINDLER SENT TO OHIO PEN BY HOLMES JUDGE

Killbuck Man Sentenced in $1,250 Fraud Case; Seven Enter Pleas.

MILLERSBURG—Seven offenders were arraigned before Common Pleas Judge R. B. Putnam, three of whom were sentenced, two placed on probation and one sentence deferred. Six of the seven were indicted by the grand jury in session last week.

Curtiss Uhl, 48, Killbuck, was sentenced to serve from one to three years in Ohio State penitentiary, after he pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with fraud. He admitted having fleeced $1,250 from J. D. Burton, filling station operator, at Killbuck, with alleged intention of purchasing a tire company in Richmond, Va., which did not exist. After obtaining the money, Uhl told the court he went to Cleveland and spent all but $15 of it. The remaining $15 was ordered placed as payment on court costs assessed against Uhl.

Enters Guilty Plea.

Edwin Miller, 24, of Holmesville, pleaded guilty on two counts in an indictment charging him with grand larceny. The first count charged him with the theft of eight bushels of clover seed, property of Holmes county commissioners, valued at $56. The second count charged him with theft of 15 bushels of clover seed from the Elliott Elevator in Holmesville. His sentence was deferred.

Arthur Roberts, of near Holmesville, a cousin of Miller's, was charged with participation in the theft in two separate indictments, one of which was secret. He pleaded not guilty. His bond was fixed at $1,500.

Albert Shaffer, 19, Dale Carnahan, 22, and Robert Brown, 24, all of Wooster, were arraigned on separate indictments charging each with breaking and entering the high school at Holmesville in 1936 and stealing a typewriter. The first two pleaded guilty. Their sentence was suspended and they were placed on probation for five years. Shaffer, however, was taken to Wooster where he began a 90-day jail sentence for the theft of a microscope from the Wooster high school.

Carl Klingler, 31, of Winfield, former resident of Glenmont, was fined $40 and costs and sentenced to serve seven days in Holmes county jail after pleading guilty to driving an automobile while under influence of intoxicating liquor.

DEBT ON GRID STADIUM PAID

Athletic Board Has $1,242 on Hand After Wiping Out Last of Old Bills.

debt was owed to banks, but two years ago, the board borrowed money from the activities fund, retired the bank loan and then reimbursed the activities fund, eliminating interest payments.

H. W. Arlin, chairman of the board said today:

"Money remaining in the athletic treasury will be available for the future development of the athletic program or athletic facilities."

Arlin also said that the payment of the stadium debt was made possible by the following of a budget plan in the athletic department. He said this system has been in operation for the last five years.

In addition to Arlin, the membership of the board consists of Supt. W. L. Miller, J. B. Moke, superintendent of buildings; E. A. Mann, faculty manager of athletics; Coaches J. Russell Murphy and Harry Mehock, and George Sherman of the high school faculty, who is secretary-treasurer.

PROFITS DOWN

Larger Crowds Fail to Hike Revenue for Shelby Fair.

SHELBY—A decline in the net proceeds of the Shelby Community Street Fair in comparison with 1937 was revaled today in the 1938 report released by Treasurer Chester Monn. Net profits last year amounted to $171.97 as compared with $429.29 for 1937.

Although larger crowds attended the fair last year than ever before, Monn said there was less spending. The revenue from the concession fees and the show and ride percentages dropped from $1,344.72 for 1937 to $996.75 last year. Approximately 6,000 persons attended the fair each night.

Total receipts of the street fair last year were $1,705.52 as compared with $1,863.24 in 1937, Monn stated. The expenditures jumped from $1,433.95 in 1937, to $1,533.55 last year due to $100 attorney fees incurred when Ernest Brunk, Shelby filling station operator, filed an injunction suit in common pleas court to stop the fair, Monn said.

Battle Against Infantile Paralysis.

SIXTH annual observance of President Roosevelt's birthday anniversary as the occasion for nation-wide contributions of money to carry on the fight against infantile paralysis, finds the work much better systematized and the benefits more widespread than in the earlier years of this activity.

Proceeds from the first Birthday ball, in 1934, all went to the Warm Springs, Ga., Foundation Fund, which was then in a rundown condition and badly in need of funds to carry on its work.

For the next three years 70 per cent of the contributions stayed in each participating community, with the remaining 30 per cent allocated either to universities and hospitals for research, or to Warm Springs.

Last year the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis was formed and the entire proceeds—more than a million dollars—went to the Foundation, leaving nothing for local campaigns against the disease.

This year another change has been made, leaving 50 per cent of contributed funds in the counties in which they originate, for use in establishing permanent chapters of the National Foundation. The other half goes to support of the national work, which includes research, services of physicians and nurses, and treatment of patients.

The "March of Dimes," in which contribution of dimes is invited, is an adjunct to the President's ball, held annually in a number of cities as a money-raising activity to support the forces battling against infantile paralysis. It is a worthy cause from which much permanent good may be expected to come.

Would Again Legalize Lotteries.

AN ATTEMPT is again being made to re-establish national and state lotteries in the United States.

Proponents of the idea contend that this would be an easy way to raise funds for governmental expenses and thus reduce taxes.

The recorded history of lotteries extends over almost five hundred years, with a lottery mania spreading all over Europe a couple of hundred years ago. During colonial days in America lotteries were regarded as a legitimate way to gather money for public purposes—even to the extent of establishing funds for use in building colleges and churches.

By the early part of the nineteenth century, however, the mischievous influence of lotteries became evident and they were gradually prohibited by law, both in Europe and the United States.

The Louisiana state lottery, which some readers will recall, was the final survivor of legalized lotteries, lasting through until 1892 when renewal of charter was refused, despite an offer of annual payment of $1,250,000 for the privilege.

In an earlier reference to growth of public sentiment against lotteries it was said: "They are generally admitted to exercise a very baneful influence, encouraging recklessness and unthrift, especially in the lower classes of society."

Proponents of the lottery scheme apparently depend on well-known public lethargy to prevent a unified expression of sentiment against such a backward step as putting states and the federal government into big scale gambling.

Benefits of Competitive Enterprise.

OAKE CARTER recently said: "No one tries to educate and to teach the great masses of people of this nation—adding the vast slice of foreign-born in our midst—that it has been the system of competition and free enterprise that has been able to provide the fantastic picture of a man without a job blandly traveling to a WPA project behind the whirring wheel of his own automobile!

"How often is the fact sold to American citizens that were it not for these basic fundamentals we would not now be enjoying the freedom to talk, write, travel, produce or buy, as we possess?"

Americans have more radios, automobiles, refrigerators, and similar luxuries than any other people. They enjoy better food, and live in better homes. They wear better clothes and have better furniture. The ordinary citizens buys and employs for his pleasure and convenience commodities that can be possessed only by the rich of other lands.

As Mr. Carter observes, it is free competition, the backbone of private initiative and free enterprise, that has given us all this. In America, the man who can manufacture a product better or cheaper than another man has been at liberty to set up his factory, go to work, and get the business through honest competition. The man who can operate a store or a group of stores more efficiently and economically than another, and so give the consumer a better break, has been free to do it, and every one in the land has benefited as a result.

Another Permanent 'Emergency.'

UNLESS congress takes action in the matter, 3-cent letter postage would come to an end next June 30 and the cost of sending a letter anywhere in the United States would revert to 2 cents.

The fifty per cent jump in letter mail rate, some readers will recall, was one of the early New Deal "emergency" measures to increase revenues until economies could be effected.

The "emergency" has been going along at a lively pace ever since—without the promised economies—so the budget submitted to congress calls for continuance of 3-cent letter postage.

Word comes that the Chinese are planning a counter offensive for 1941 and are looking forward to winning the war within a hundred years—which will be considered rather fast work in China.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—It would be a weird affair if the recent good will visit here of Colonel Batista of Cuba should upset the sugar quota system and even imperil the whole reciprocal trade network so painstakingly woven by Secretary of State Hull.

But such are the possibilities. The administration is fighting grimly to save both.

The trouble, long brewing, was brought to a head this way:

Soon after Colonel Batista returned to Cuba, he was quoted as saying that the state department had promised a reduction in the U. S. tariff on Cuban sugar.

Promptly the state department denied it. Officials insisted all sugar interests in this country would be heard at regular hearings prescribed by the act. But critics of the sugar quota system and the reciprocal trade agreements would not be silenced.

Here, they insisted, was a fine example of the way the act permitted the government to toss away to a foreign country the rights which should be reserved for American producers. Batista later sent something in the way of a denial but he, too, was in a cross fire, for a tariff cut is desperately needed by Cuba.

Two Distinct Items.

TO KEEP the picture clear it is necessary to distinguish between the reciprocal trade act and the sugar quota act.

Under the reciprocal trade act, the state department can negotiate tariff trade with other countries in order to stimulate commerce. Cuba always is favored as a matter of national policy and under the trade act the tariff on Cuban sugar has been consistently decreased in recent years until now it is only 90 cents a hundred pounds as compared with $1.87½ on other world sugar.

Under the quota act, a separate piece of legislation, Cuba is allowed to ship into this country a fixed amount of sugar each year, usually about 2,000,000 tons. That is more than one-fourth of the approximately 7,000,000 tons this country uses annually. The major balance of the American market is distributed among American beet and cane sugar areas and Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Philippines.

The producing areas constantly seek a larger share, and American producers insist that as a home industry they should be allowed to produce all they can. Their 1938 quota was 1,572,000 tons.

Seek Protection.

THE department of agriculture and state department argue that the American industry should rest at its present level instead of being allowed to grow at the expense of American consumers, who are compelled to pay the difference between cheaply produced Cuban sugar and higher cost American continental sugar.

American producers insist they are an established industry entitled to protection from cheap outside competition just as other American industry. American producers, represented in Congress by active Democratic "independents" such as Senators Adams of Colorado and O'Mahoney of Wyoming and Republicans like Vandenberg of Michigan, grabbed at the Batista affairs as a jumping off place for the attack.

Secretary Hull, called before a senate committe, said he had told Batista only that the problem would be looked into. But the fat was in the fire and a big airing of the whole troublesome sugar problem is scheduled for this session.

TWO PROJECTS

Insurance Reserves Bothersome

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Very shortly the monopoly investigating committee will turn its attention to the big insurance companies. Ever since there has been a New Deal there has been an eagerness on the part of the left wingers to get after these huge financial institutions.

The two things that will be gone into very thoroughly, according to the frank statements of those interested, will be the investment policy of the managements of these companies, and the loans that the companies make on policies. A bitter battle is expected here, for the insurance companies have a good deal of the pride of authorship or achievement, so to speak, in their investments, and they feel very strongly against liberalizing their policy loan system.

This last can be dismissed so briefly that it will be stated first. Insurance officials usually favor a 6 per cent interest rate on such loans. There are two major considerations. One is to make the loans easy to obtain. That is for the policy holder's benefit and to make the holding of policies an advantage. But the other is to make the interest rate high, so that the borrower will have an incentive to pay off the loan, thereby clearing his policy, and thus maintain the maximum of insurance protection, which of course is the main object of the policy, and the main business of the company.

NEW DEALERS do not like the high rate, because one of the objectives of New Deal economics is to put interest rates down. This policy has already hurt the insurance companies enormously. It has reduced the interest rate on bonds which formerly paid much greater sums into the insurance company treasuries. As a natural result, this has reduced very heavily the dividends paid to policy holders, or credited on their policies in the form of additional insurance.

Not only has New Deal policy reduced the rate of interest on government bonds, but it has reduced the interest on the bonds of private corporations. This phase was "planned" that way. But another phase was not. Yet as a result of government competition with the electric industry there was a terrific falling off of new investment in the utilities, and as a result of S. E. C. restrictions and other New Deal activities, private corporations issued so few new bonds that it became a problem for the insurance companies, or for that matter any investors, to place their funds.

As a result, bonds already outstanding, which were known to be good, advanced in price, thus lowering the return on any new purchases that the insurance companies might make.

There has been a good deal of complaint by prominent New Deal officials about this "capital strike." President Roosevelt in his first address to Congress this year pointed to the necessity of getting idle capital and idle labor together so as to boost the national income to eighty billions a year.

BUT entirely aside from these points, New Dealers have been regarding the tremendous reservoirs of capital in the hands of the insurance companies with jealous eyes since even before they came into power. It is not the garden variety of wanting another's wealth. It is fear that the power which such an extraordinary amount of money in the hands of a few men might have to thwart the objectives of government, to grant or withhold prosperity from any given industry.

It is part and parcel of private control of the country's economic life, as the New Dealers see it, as contrasted with public control—via government.

Sales to Japan.

Americans generally, we believe, will approve the action of the United Aircraft corporation in agreeing voluntarily to comply with the government's policy of refusing to export planes to armies bombing civilian populations; in other words to the Japanese. This is to the good. American aircraft firms hereafter will not take part in the wholesale murder of helpless Chinese men, women and children.

But what about the sale of American high octane gasoline to Japan? This is used in bombers. And what about scrap iron, and other material obviously intended for war uses?

Do Americans enjoy the way their neutrality legislation is working or not working? It was designed to apply to wars in Europe. The democracies with freedom of the seas were expected to be able to come to this country, buy supplies and carry them away in their own ships. But it happens that in the undeclared war now in progress with incredible brutality against the Chinese, the nation that has access to the sea is Japan. So we have not ventured to put the neutrality law into effect. In default of any legal restrictions, however, we are helping Japan conquer China—and most of us are not happy about it.—Kansas City Star.

Health Advice

Caring for Aged Not Difficult.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE other day a gentleman came up to me at my club and said:

"I've got a pick on you doctors. Why don't you ever do anything about the treatment of old people? You just give us up, when we get to a certain age. You don't tell us what we ought to do, or how we ought to live, or what we ought to eat—and there is no place for us to go to find out—you just give us up."

"Well, now, wait a minute," I said. "Let's get the record straight. We don't give you up. In the first place, there is a specialty in medicine known as Geriatrics. It is the study of old age, just as Pediatrics is the study of infancy and childhood. And there are practitioners who specialize in geriatrics and have special hospitals for its treatment. Besides, why do you need it?"

He said because he was seventy-two, although I can honestly (this time) say he doesn't look it, nor act it. He is so active that he gives point to the doctrine that seventy isn't old any longer.

Wost Time.

He isn't at all like that other member of my club, who in reply to the question of what the worst feature of old age was, said, "The time after four-thirty."

When somebody asked did he mean four-thirty in the afternoon or four-thirty in the morning, he said:

"Both. After four-thirty in the morning you can't get any sleep and after four-thirty in the afternoon you can't keep awake. Or else in the afternoon there is a vacuum with not a darned thing to do until the movies open up."

My friend isn't like that. He is just as active in business from four-thirty to six as he ever was. And he tells me that if he wakes up in the morning he starts in on his Spanish lesson so that he can appreciate his projected South American trip. He is very much alive and up-to-date, but he thinks some practical hygienic advice would improve him.

So in deference to his request, I will consult with the authorities on geriatrics and report what their wisdom is.

Touching Lightly.

The picture of old age is not an entrancing one, as I am beginning to realize personally only too well, and I shall touch it up very lightly.

One distinction should be pointed out. I am not now referring to middle age. The middle-aged are worried about their high blood pressure, and their teeth, and their angina, and their hearts, and their hearing, and their varicose veins, and their golf games, and the lack of love in their lives.

Old age has got all over that. After the grand climacteric, which occurs in men as well as women, their arteries have calmed down, they are not much liable to cardiac or cerebral accidents. They are used to glasses, and dental plates, and are rather glad they do not hear as much as they once did. They are used to barbers snipping bristles out of their ears, and cluckling sympathetically as they do so. They do not expect to play eighteen holes of golf every day, and "Romeo and Juliet" stories don't appeal to them as being nearly as sad as a furnace breakdown or something wrong with the new icebox.

Other Worries.

What they are worried about is sleeping well, and itchy skin, and their bowels, and why prostates swell instead of shrinking like everything else, and coughing, and why they can't remember what happened yesterday, and painful lumps in their fingers, and rough places on the skin.

I know nobody likes to admit he is aged, but those are the symptoms and that is what I want to write about in the next several articles.

A Farmer's Diary

The Hairy Woodpecker.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AS I walk about the woodlands, I have often noticed the mottled black and white back of the hairy woodpecker, shuffling about the trunks of injured, living trees. Today I saw him on a branch of a dead elm top. He marched upward, as though supported by some hidden power, tapped with his beak, listened for a fraction of a second, then bored furiously at one point — which meant certain death to the imprisoned worm. His tapping calls the larva's attention, and when it moves he hears the slight commotion and punctures that definite spot. His tongue is like a spear, with a hook upon the end. I saw him get his worm at least twenty different times, as I stood there, back of a nearby beech.

When I sawed an old elm up for firewood, recently, I counted ten punctures in a space of six inches square. I pared the stiff bark off, with my ax, and found just two places where I could see no traces of a worm. The entire surface of the branch, under and above, was punctured in a similar manner.

He flew upon a beech tree, five feet nearer, and I could see at closer range. When he prepared for tapping, his twelve stiff tail feathers held like a brace against the smooth, even bark. His head moved so rapidly I could not follow the heavy-sounding strokes. The sturdy feet are armed with four toes each, bearing a sharp claw, two pointing backward, and two forward. With this equipment, he moves up, down and sidewise on any tree. He also has a shock absorber in his head, to protect his tiny brain.

Like a lumberman or carpenter, the forest is his living and his home. Here he gets his frugal livelihood by practiced methods of his own, and saves the life of many a noble tree.

I have seen and heard him in early spring, chiseling out a round hole in a dead tree top. The chips fall like yellow flakes about the base. So he announces to the world that a cozy home is being built for a lovely mate. Soon the mother's brooding head peeps contentedly from the lofty home.

Listen, World!

Are You Free . . . or Wearing Stripes?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

TOM MOONEY is free—after 22 years. Some of his friends wondered if the change wouldn't be too much for him. Liberty does strange things to mortals, at times. The reversal of habits . . . the sudden, bewildering necessity of making decisions . . . many a man collapsed before such alteration, as deep sea fish collapses when lifted from the weight of watery miles. Would Tom crumble too?

They asked. He smiled . . . "I'm not afraid," he said. "My brain and heart have never been in prison."

"Never in prison—" I wonder how many "free" men could say as much of their spirits. Not many, I wager. Bars — they're common enough. Most of us know them, even though we may never have seen a jail or broken a major law. Bars of Personal TRAGEDY, POVERTY, SICKNESS, FAMILY OBLIGATION, UNHAPPY MARRIAGE OR UNCONGENIAL WORK . . . they come to us all, in some form, sooner or later. And the great test is not that they come—BUT HOW WE TAKE THEM.

Consider, for example, ten men, all poor from birth . . . all uneducated . . . shackled by domestic difficulties . . . not too well. TEN MEN — WHOSE BODIES DEFINITELY LIVE BEHIND BARS—But how about their spirits? Are they, spiritually, FREE MEN . . . or LICKED CURS?

Eight out of that ten will be LICKED. They may rage violently against their defeat . . . or they may hide it beneath a devil-may-care camouflage. Or they may make a rack of it, to attract sympathy or escape responsibility. But, whatever their demeanor, they are definitely LICKED. THEIR SPIRITS ARE IN PRISON.

The other two men will be free as air. They may be untrained, handicapped, penniless, diseased . . . but THEIR SPIRITS ARE FREE. They have refused to accept defeat . . . they have faith in their ability to triumph . . . AND AS SURE AS THERE'S A GOD IN HEAVEN, THAT FAITH WILL BRING THEM THEIR OPPORTUNITY FOR RELEASE.

Tom Mooney is undoubtedly a free man today because he never allowed any circumstance to put shackles on his faith or imagination. You may or may not admire the man himself—but you must respect the tremendous courage and confidence of his spirit. I knew, intimately, of his long fight . . . saw many of the letters he wrote to those who were seeking to free him. They were angry letters, many of them. Impatient letters. BUT THERE WAS NEVER ONE COWARDLY LETTER . . . NEVER ONE LETTER THAT ADMITTED SURRENDER.

Remember Henley's glorious lines—

"Out of that night that covers me,
"Black as the pit from pole to pole,
"I thank whatever gods there be
"For my unconquerable soul."

There's the real test of your manhood or womanhood . . . not the thing that happens to you, but how you feel about that thing. Any man can, every man does, have tough breaks. But how do YOU take yours? Up and battling . . . or down, taking the count?

"In the fell clutch of circumstance
"I have not winced nor cried aloud,
"Under the bludgeoning of chance
"My head is bloody but unbowed."

How's YOUR head? Still on the job . . . looking for a way out? Of just full of sobs 'n' nosebleed?

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

Ku Klux Klan.

The Greeks had a name for it; in fact, it is the Hellenic word that we use when we mention this organization, which, active politically for many years in the South after the Civil war, was long since officially dissolved but experiences periodic resurrection.

Ku Klux is a corruption of the Greek word for "circle"; Klan, added for alliterative emphasis is, as will be seen, supererogatory.

The dictionary defines "circle" as "a plane figure, bounded by a single curved line called its circumference, every part of which is equally distant from a point within it called the center."

Ku Klux was a circle, a secret ring assembled about a center point of interest, bound by a common tie—preservation and perpetuation of the hegemony of the old order of the South, through repression of the political power of the newly enfranchised colored freedmen who greatly outnumbered the whites.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It isn't generally known that most of the beautiful models you see featuring smart magazine ads or working in expensive Fifth avenue shops are married. But they are, and usually to hard-working young architects who labor from daylight till dusk and come home so fatigued they can't tell a gardenia from catnip.

I have this information from no less an authority than a model herself, a very pretty model withal, and a bride. Fortunately she appreciates the fact that her bread-winner is a hard worker and is entitled to a few moments of quiet relaxation at the end of his day.

She was telling me of an incident pertinent to this set-up the other day, and it shows you what a jewel this young man has, for, in addition to beauty, she has the added gift of a sense of humor.

The husband arrived home after an unusually vexing day and sank at once into an inviting underslung chair. He had been home less than five minutes when in walked his tall and comely bride. She didn't walk with the usual walk that most people know. She slithered in in one of those long, slinky, toe-in-front-of-toe glides which are essential to good modeling.

From the depths of his chair the groom observed all this. With a weary smile he waved his hand and uttered just two words: "Honey," he said, "de-glamorize."

TO MEN who slave with paint and canvas in the sunlight, this ought to be cheering news. For at long, long last electricians have approximated sunlight. How often have you seen artists work desperately to get as much done as possible before the last rays of sunlight vanished.

They need the sunlight, for colors can't be mixed under artificial light. Couldn't is a better word, for they can now. This new light so closely approximates sunlight that you can't tell the difference. That is why artists all over New York are equipping their studios with this new way to perpetual daylight. You just turn the switch and there it is.

THE annual luncheon of the Anti-Superstition Society was lots of fun. Thirteen of us went down to the New Yorker for this brazen flouting of tradition, and none of us has been hexed yet.

To enter the dining room we had to pass under a ladder. For place cards broken mirrors were used. There was a bed set up near the festive board on which we all tossed our hats. Above the table was suspended an opened umbrella. At each plate was a block of wood, NOT to be knocked on. And pins were scattered over the floor, NOT to be picked up.

Then there was a gargantuan cake, the crest of which was a black oval with the numeral 8 iced clearly on it, thus placing us emphatically and at once behind the eight-ball. When we weren't eating we spent the time lighting three cigarets on one match, and thumbing our noses at similar "dont's."

Nothing very awful has happened to us—yet. Here's hoping.

GERMANY--SIX YEARS UNDER HITLER'S RULE

National Socialism Welds Press Into Weapon Aiding Nazi Objectives.

Editor's Note: Following is another of several dispatches regarding Germany on the sixth anniversary of Adolf Hitler's rise to power.

By RICHARD C. HOTTELET
(United Press Correspondent)

BERLIN—Six years of national Socialism have welded the German press into an instrument for furthering the aims of Nazi state.

Newspaper opinion on government questions in Germany is unanimous. Much of the news published is subject to governmental supervision. Editors and reporters, publishers and distributors are selected according to Nazi party principles.

There is no official censorship, however, on news going out of Germany.

German newspapers exercise the function of molding public opinion as defined by Adolf Hitler in "Mein Kampf." Hitler said the press "should with ruthless determination be made the means of educating the people, and be placed in the service of the state and nation. It is but the means to an end and the end is the political struggle of a nation."

Czech Crisis Example.

An example of the German press attitude was given during the Czechoslovak crisis. In a rising crescendo, newspapers in every corner of the Reich thundered against Prague. The news on the situation consisted of information from Nazi-approved sources interwoven with editorial comment.

Many developments that made headlines in America never saw print in Germany. The French partial mobilization, the mobilization of the British fleet and the precautionary measures taken throughout England were disposed of with a few lines or did not appear in a German paper until after the Munich conference.

Throughout the so-called "crisis" period, foreign papers were at a premium. They were sold within a few minutes.

Along the fashionable Kurfuerstendamm, on the main squares, and wherever foreign newspapers were sold, people collected around the news stands, spelling out headlines.

When Anti-Jewish activity flared up in Berlin last June, newspapers did not mention the fact. When destruction of Jewish property occurred in November, accounts of it received prominent press display in conjunction with official disclaimers of responsibility.

When national socialism triumphed in Germany in January, 1933, one of the first legal measures was the creation of a Reich culture chamber headed by Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels. The press was included in this as a sub-chamber.

All Must Be Members.

With this move, according to the head of the press chamber, "the journalistic profession ceased to be a business and became a cultural activity." The head of the culture chamber was also the propaganda minister and all newspapermen, publishers and distributors of newspapers and magazines must be members of the chamber.

Immediately after this ordinance came the journalists law or schriftleitergesetz, which listed the requirements for all those active in the field of journalism.

The journalists law listed the aims and restrictions applying to newspapers and forbidden as material were anything which is liable to injure the strength of the reich at home or abroad, injure German fighting power, culture, economy, or the religious convictions of others; and anything incompatible with the dignity and honor of a German.

Book of the Week

"WHEN THERE IS NO PEACE," by Hamilton Fish Armstrong; (Macmillan; $1.75).

IT IS futile to pretend that any book on the middle European crisis of last summer and fall can offer much of value or much that is new—just yet. Historians know quite well that until the propriety of Chamberlain's surrender is proved or disproved, their books are so much dust in the wind. But of course historians must eat, and so they write books.

Hamilton Fish Armstrong writes one of the best so far. He calls it, with gentle indirection, "When There Is No Peace." It is a kind of chronology with suggestive comment of the events of last year as they center on Czechoslovakia. It avoids denunciations and as nearly as would be possible it confines itself to standard sources; unfortunately, these standard sources do not as yet exist for the historian in most cases, and Mr. Armstrong has been forced to rely on European newspapers too much. There is a pride worthy difference in the honesty of the statements taken from American papers and those quoted from "directed" European and British papers.

Mr. Armstrong's book begins with last February. It ends with the Munich pact, and contains beside a running story with comment, a chronology of events. These duplicate and overlap, and for purposes of clarity might better have been combined. There is even a document or two printed (according to the author) for the first time. Armstrong accuses the British of deliberately suppressing the Czech reply to the ultimatum of France and England in which the Czechs were told they must give Hitler what he wanted. This was a strong reply, and would have made bad reading in England, thinks Armstrong. Wherefore Runciman's report of September 21 followed the ultimatum to the Czechs in the "White Paper" for face-saving purposes.

As nearly as we can affect a condensation, the author says: Chamberlain may have been right in avoiding war at all costs, but the policy followed in September might not have been the right one some months earlier, and if a stronger tone had been taken then, the September solution might not have been a surrender.—By J. S.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE certainly makes short work of relieving those stubborn old hang-on coughs and colds that other cough remedies fail to budge, according to Mr. H. A. Allen.

Mr. Allen says: "For years I suffered every winter with a terrible cough. I have had many sleepless nights and coughed until tears ran, and my stomach ached. I started again with the same old cough this year—but after a few doses of BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE my cough was gone."

You can't go wrong on BUCKLEY'S by far the largest-selling cough medicine in all cold Canada. One or two doses and stubborn tough hang-on coughs are often on their way. And it's on a few cents at druggists everywhere. Money back if not delighted.

House Gets 'Ripper Bill' as Senate Takes Up Relief

MAPS PLAN TO REVAMP OHIO'S UCC DIVISION

Lower House Votes Approval of Relief Measure; Sales Tax Bill Up for Study.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The Matson sales tax bill, which would discontinue earmarking of sales tax revenue, was voted out and recommended for passage by the house taxation committee today, 20 to one.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—The senate taxation committee prepared today to discuss the $5,000,000 emergency poor relief bill, already passed by the house, while the house was confronted with the unemployment compensation commission "ripper bill" and the Matson sales tax bill.

Soon after the house passed the poor relief measure, 121 to 10, the senate convened and referred the measure to its taxation committee.

The "ripper bill," which would reorganize the unemployment compensation commission, was introduced in the house by Majority Floor Leader Harry J. McGregor (R-Coshocton) and Rep. George B. Marshall (R-Franklin).

Passed as Emergency.

An emergency bill, the Matson bill passed the senate unanimously and was sent over to the house. The bill was read once and under suspension of the rules, read for the second time and referred to committee on taxation.

It provides for allocation to the general revenue fund of 1938 and 1939 sales tax collections with the exception of $12,000,000 annually which will revert to local governments for operating costs.

After three unsuccessful attempts to amend the poor relief measure, Cuyahoga county representatives gave up their attempt to sidetrack the measure and went along with the Republican landslide.

Minority Floor Leader Michael A. Feighan (D-Cuyahoga) introduced an amendment to hike the $5,000,000 figure to $7,500,000. The amendment was lost, 101 to 29, after somewhat heated debate.

No sooner was this amendment voted down than Rep. Patrick Monahan (D-Cuyahoga), attempted, by amendment, to strike out the dollar-for-dollar matching clause. The amendment was defeated, 106 to 26.

Wasting no time after the relief measure was successfully through the house, McGregor and Marshall sent their "ripper bill" to the hopper.

It would create a bureau of unemployment compensation to replace the unemployment compensation commission. At its helm would be an administrator appointed by the governor, to serve for the duration of the governor's term, at an annual salary of $6,000.

A salient clause provided for a three-member board of review, not more than two of whom could be of one political faith. Board of review members would serve for six-year terms except in the case of original appointees who would serve for two, four and six years. To be appointed by the governor, their annual salary would be $4,000.

BACK IN CELL

Ohio Pen Fugitive Surrenders; He Was Just 'Looking Around.'

COLUMBUS—(AP)—John Cahill, 34, Ohio penitentiary trusty whose escape Jan. 6 was disclosed yesterday, was back in his cell today.

"He came in voluntarily last night," said Warden James C. Woodard. "He said he had been around looking the country over."

Woodard asserted that Cahill, sentenced from Cleveland in 1934 to 10 to 25 years for robbery, would be forced to serve extra "time" for his escape.

The next meeting of the class will be held Feb. 22 at the church.

New Dealers Face New Fight on Labor Act

Here's an economy note in the Ohio government that hasn't been given much attention in the routine news stories out of Columbus. State Highway Director Robert S. Beightler is mailing out highway department information in envelopes which still designate John J. Jaster, his predecessor as highway boss. The new regime hasn't even bothered to draw a line through Jaster's name.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Tracy are probably reading accounts of the Chilean earthquake more closely than most Mansfielders today. They are familiar with the devastated territory, much of it once beauteous countryside, because in March, 1937, the Tracy's were in Chile and traveled from Osorno to Santiago by train, passing through Talco, San Rafhel, Curico and San Fernando, four of the cities which were damaged by the quake.

It was a day of well wishes around city hall this morning as three city employes joined in the celebration of their birthday anniversaries. August Schultz, municipal court bailiff, started the felicitations when he stepped into the city auditor's office to exchange congratulations with Ruth Durig. Together they went to the third floor where they extended birthday greetings to Miss Martha McFarland, clerk in the health department. What anniversary it was for each was not revealed. The age question never came up, except that Schultz admitted he was older than the two girls.

JURY RECESSES

Petit Panel Awards $3,000 Judgment; Meets Friday.

After awarding a $3,000 judgment late yesterday in a $15,000 damage suit, the county petit jury recessed until 9 a. m. Friday when it is scheduled to re-convene to hear a $143 judgment case.

In near-record time, the jury disposed of a case yesterday in which James Shriver, 14-year-old Lincoln Heights youth, sought damages for injuries he suffered in October, 1936, when he was struck by a car near his home. The jury deliberated about an hour before returning its verdict.

R. C. Barrett, Clevelad, driver of the car and defendant in the suit, was represented at the trial by Hopkins and Hopkins, Cincinnati law firm. Barrett is in California. Atty. J. V. Will was counsel for Mrs. Helen Shriver, mother of the injured youth, who filed the suit for him.

In the case set for trial tomorrow, Mrs. Katherine Burgess, Mansfield, asks a $143 judgment for salary allegedly due George Burgess, a minor, from Richard Wheitner, proprietor of Dick's Dry Cleaners.

MARTIN MAPS COURT FIGHT

Declares He'll Battle to Save UAW From 'Stalinists'; Hires Attorneys for Contest.

(By United Press)

DETROIT—Homer Martin, head of one of two rival factions of the United Automobile Workers of America, returns today from New York with two lawyers who will wage his court fight here Saturday for possession of the union's funds, records and property.

Ousted from the executive board of the Congress of Industrial organizations of which he was one of the original organizers, and opposed by 18 of the 24 original UAW executive board members, the 37-year-old former Baptist preacher announced that he was fighting to save the union from "Stalinists" and that the majority of the 400,000 rank and file members were behind him.

In reply, R. L. Thomas, head of the UAW's anti-Martin faction, named president of the union by a majority of the executive board after Martin had suspended them, and who has been recognized by the CIO as the rightful president, charged that Martin had "conspired with Harry Bennett, personnel director of the Ford Motor company, to convert the UAW into a Ford company union."

Martin went to New York to engage Frank P. Walsh, veteran labor lawyer, and Frank Munholland of Toledo, attorney for the railway union executives, as counsel for his side at Saturday's hearing on injunction proceedings filed by the Thomas faction for legal recognition.

Mansfield's "First Citizen of 1938" will be announced at the annual dinner of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce and Manufacturers division at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

The "civic award" will be presented to the person selected by a special C. of C. committee as having done the most for civic betterment during the past year. The award will be the second to be presented by the chamber, the first going to the Liberty Park association last year. Nathaniel Leverone of Chicago, president of the Automatic Canteen company of America, will deliver the principal address at the dinner. His subject will be "Which Way America?" The other speaker will be Cullen Wright of Omaha, Neb., widely known cowboy humorist and philosopher.

Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the chamber, said today that approximately 430 reservations, a complete sell-out, had been made for the dinner.

Leverone, a graduate of Dartmouth college, is president of the Merchants and Manufacturers club, director of the Chicago Better Business bureau, vice president of the Chicago Rotary club and president of the Anti-Superstitution society.

Leverone entered the automatic vending machine field 20 years ago and is credited with raising the vending machine from the slot machine level to that of the "automatic canteen."

His automatic canteen sales in the nation's factories from coast to coast have become recognized as a barmometer of business trends.

ENDORSES TAX EXEMPTION PLAN

Auditor Says Measure Now Pending Would Save County Money.

Favoring a measure now pending in the state legislature which would exempt small property owners from payment of personal tax under $2 a year on intangibles, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe predicted today that the plan would save Richland county at least $1,000 a year if it is enacted into a law.

Wolfe said he had written Ralph C. Lutz, Richland county representative, and other legislators, urging them to support the bill as an economy measure.

"Enactment of the bill into a law would eliminate about 1,000 personal tax returns annually in Richland county and would actually save money in handling the accounts," the auditor said. "Loss of revenue probably would be about $1,000, or an average of $1 on each account, but it costs the county more than twice that to collect the taxes."

FACE MOVE TO STRIP NLRB OF JUDICIAL POWER

Nebraska Senator Heads Bloc Urging Modifications for Wagner Act.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Administration leaders opposed to revision of the National Labor relations act faced additional trouble today as Senator Burke, (D) of Nebraska, moved to strip the labor board of its judicial powers, considered one of its strongest weapons.

Burke's announcement that he will seek to displace the board's sole authority to rule on collective bargaining disputes and violations, followed introduction in the senate of amendments proposed by the American Federation of Labor. These amendments, sponsored by Sen. Walsh (D) of Massachusetts, would greatly modify the act "to guarantee fair and equitable administration."

The Nebraskan, long a critic of administration of the act, will support the A. F. of L.'s program, but declared "it does not go far enough."

Power Curb Needed.

"The amendments drawn up by the A. F. of L. are fine and I am for them," he said, "but it is necessary to take away the judicial powers of the board altogether if the act is to become fair for all concerned."

Those opposed to revision of the act said they saw in Burke's proposal an attempt to reduce the labor board to merely an investigating and prosecuting body.

Senator Wagner, (D) of New York, sponsor of the labor act, refused to comment on Burke's proposal or the A. F. of L. amendments. Wagner, however, called attention to the fact that he has many times stated he will oppose any drastic revision, or modification of the act. A similar position has consistently been taken by the CIO, headed by John L. Lewis, a bitter rival of the A. F. of L.

Consideration of the amendment by the committee and possibly the senate is expected to bring to the forefront the bitter rivalry between the A. F. of L., based on craft unions, and the CIO, based on unionization by whole industries.

Mrs. Esther Pressler Stricken After Long Illness.

A daughter, Mrs. Clyde C. Reynolds; a sister, Mrs. O. S. Meyers, and a brother, James Mitchell of Mansfield, survive.

Services will be held at the Finefrock funeral home at 2:30 p. m. Saturday with Rev. Hayes M. Braker of the Park Avenue church officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery. The body will remain at the home until noon Saturday.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Notre Dame Prof Takes Papers Apart But Fails To Prove His Charges

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—The University of Notre Dame has published a series of five lectures on "The Morality of the Newspaper," given by Richard Reid, of Augusta, Ga., editor of the Bulletin, a Catholic publication. They are thoughtful, interesting discussions, and newspapermen will find in them paragraphs of criticism and warning which should be taken to heart.

But, although Mr. Reid writes from experience, it seems to me that he has fallen behind the times, for he speaks of yellow journalism as though it were characteristic of the American press today, whereas it is my impression that yellow journalism has been on the wane for years and is now almost extinct. This probably calls for a definition of yellow journalism—too big a topic for a compact discussion—but Mr. Reid cites matters which may be used as points of debate.

He says that the emphasizing of Public Enemy No. 1 and his criminal exploits created many local counterparts, many of whom made records of murder and armed robbery before their careers of crime were ended. He also quotes "the police commissioner of New York in his annual report of a recent year" as complaining that the press published exaggerated stories of lawlessness which served to attract criminals who, because of newspaper stories, believed that they could operate with impunity.

He further objects to the writings of "sob sisters" and other journalists who seek to glorify lawbreakers, defend murderers on the score of unwritten law and attempt to blind readers to the real character of a criminal by depicting him as a home lover and kind parent.

I suggest that Mr. Reid is behind the times, because much of the press of this country has deliberately avoided the glorification of the hoodlum or public enemy for some years as a matter of editorial policy. Publication of news of the crimes of those criminals known as public enemies is another matter. The papers have no right to suppress such news, and if they were to do so might be suspected of co-operating with criminals or whitewashing incompetent or crooked police.

It may be remembered that St. Paul was for years notorious as a haven for criminals and that in a more recent time a high official of the federal government, commenting on the kidnapings in that region, remarked that there seemed to be something rotten in St. Paul.

Nor was it the press that invited the term "public enemy" or the ranking system, and if for a time in the '20's newspaper treatment of crime was flippant or romantic it must be admitted that the whole country was crazy about them and sympathetic with criminals who provided a rebellious public with liquor.

I would have more confidence in discussing the report of the police commissioner of New York quoted by Mr. Reid if he had named the commissioner in question. For we did have a political commissioner here in recent years who suppressed the news of crime or made difficulties for the reporters assigned to get it and constantly complained that such news was published to discredit him and the administration and encourage criminals. This was not a rare occurrence. It has happened in other cities, and it is best to let the facts speak for themselves and unwise to rely entirely on the remarks of commissioners or chiefs who may be incompetent or guilty.

The sob sister, as anyone should know who claims to be an authority, is vanishing from American journalism, and women reporters for years have resented the name and avoided the sentimental approach. Perhaps that it too broad a denial. Better say that the sob sister and the sob technique are almost extinct.

The term "unwritten law" is not a newspaper invention, and has the force of the written law in Texas and other sections of the country where morality runs high and, as for the exploitation of the private character, the chastity and piety of accused persons, Mr. Reid can be shown cases in which members of the clergy have given testimoney to this effect which was entirely irrelevant to the charges on trial and unfair to the interests of the people.

"It would be interesting and perhaps alarming," Mr. Reid says, "to ascertain what part the papers played in building up the hatred which resulted in the attempted assassination of Mr. Roosevelt at Miami before his inauguration—an attempt which resulted in the death of the mayor of Chicago."

I think it would be interesting, but reassuring rather than alarming, for the man who fired the shots was insane and complained only of pains in his stomach and, in most other states, would have been sent to a lunatic asylum rather than to the electric chair.

Moreover, that attack occurred during the "honeymoon period," when Mr. Roosevelt was enjoying an enthusiastic press and before he took to calling his political opponents snakes in the grass, Economic Royalists, Tories and welfed clubmen—a form of address which he himself momentarily deplored about a year ago in a speech calling for moderation.

Mr. Reid may find it interesting also to consider what would have been the consequences if another attack had been made on the President of the United States in the campaign of 1936 and the assailant had justified himself on the ground that a famous priest had denounced the president as a liar and double-crosser and an anti-God.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—W. Ray Johnston looked back today on 25 years of making bread-and-butter movies, and he found them good.

Johnston, a silver-jubileer at 47, will be toasted sometime in March by his associates in Monogram, but the actual anniversary of his entry into movies is in January.

That was when he went from Iowa to New York, or from mausoleums to movies. He was 22, and he had a new mail-order dress suit besides a job with the old Thanhouser film company, 45 minutes from Broadway, in New Rochelle.

As an employe of a many-faceted local firm in Waterloo, Ia., Johnston had specialized in mausoleums. The movies maybe seemed more cheerful—but the important thing is that he went, he wore his dress suit the night he arrived, he got to be a leading man, and today he's president of one of the few movie companies that never has had a "bad year."

* * *

"AS AN actor they said I belonged to the Immobile, Ala., school," he recalled today, "and they were right. If there lived a worse ham before or since, I've never seen him. I decided you didn't need an expressive face behind the camera, and I've stayed there ever since."

The title of his first "starring" one-reeler was "His I. O. U."

And today—without a genuine "epic" in the list—his name is on some of the industry's biggest money-makers. Like other "independents," he is content to leave the "epics" to the majors—and to leave the gambling to them, too.

A couple of years ago Johnston's concern made a movie called "Boy of the Streets." (It's his theory that a title with "boy" or "streets" in it can't miss either, so this was a sure thing doubly). Anyway, the picture lifted a waning Jackie Cooper back to a stardom that has earned him probably $100,000 since—and that brought up the question of stellar comebacks via the independents, which are often called the "burying-ground of stars."

* * *

"WE GET stars either on the way down, or the way up," he said. "And I think that stars have a good chance to come back with us—if they get the right vehicle. That's what makes them 'washed up' in the bigger studios. Under contract, they have to be used in pictures good or bad, and the star gets the blame for the bad pictures.

Married Him Just To Have Home

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've been married only three months, and am so unhappy. I married only because I knew my husband could give me a good home. I don't think I can ever love any man. I was disappointed in my first love affair, years ago, and although I've tried, I cannot love anyone else.

My husband is very good to me, gives me everything I want, and isn't aware of the fact I don't love him. Is it possible for me to go through life like this and expect any happiness? I have no affection at all for him, although he is very much in love with me. I often pray to God to take me away.

UNHAPPY BRIDE.

I've forgotten where I saw the quotation, but it's something like this: Go down on your knees and thank God for a good man's love. I hope you will do this and stop indulging in morbid reflections over a love affair that turned out badly several years ago. If your husband grows tired of your coldness and lack of sympathy, he is likely, after the manner of most men, to seek consolation elsewhere. Then you'll probably come to the conclusion that you never really loved anyone else and that you were in love with him all the time without realizing it. So many women have written me this, and then only to ask me later how to get him back again.

Hair Too Short For Upward Trends

By MME. QUI VIVE

Fifteen years ago the bob became standardized. Before that time a few daring women took the short cut with the result that most of their friends cut them dead. They were considered arty. Or they had a desire to make themselves conspicuous. They were scolded, talked about, held up to ridicule. Then the sisterhood went crazy and followed suit, which made the bob respectable.

The ballyhoo in favor of the upped coiffure has sounded through the land like a siren. A few braves have responded. Others have rebelled against it. A third contingent is waiting to find which way the fashion tide is going. Then they'll follow along.

What have we today from which to evolve the uppity halo? The average length is four inches. If you haven't sheared for four or five months you may have six inches. Even six inch lengths swished up at the back can't be made to stick unless you starch them with bandoline or bear's grease. It's enough to make laughter.

It takes plenty of wool to get any sort of an effect. You can't make a big fat sausage roll out of half a dozen hairs. Hence we believe that the girl with scant locks had better keep to her flowing fluffy bob, which is not out of date, no matter what your hairdresser has to say.

The time is going when women will make themselves unlovely in pursuit of a new fashion. If the new style flatters, they'll grab it. If it doesn't, they'll turn thumbs down, you can bet your pretty red boots on that.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I'll be very careful," Miss Whitlock assured me again. "I'm sure you can count on me."

An imperative knock upon the connecting door between my rooms and those of Noel and Mary interrupted my checking.

"Come in!" I called, and Mary burst impetuously into the room, followed more sedately but with palpable equal anxiety by Noel.

"Wasn't that Miss Whitlock?" Mary demanded, and at my assenting nod broke into impetuous speech.

"There, Noel, you see!" she exclaimed reproachfully. "I told you that was probably Miss Whitlock, but you wouldn't let me come over before, and it's almost the time Uncle Dicky set for you to go. You almost would have missed this."

"But he didn't, and everything is working out beautifully. Your father-in-law apparently has accepted my letter at its face value."

"He ought to," Mary interrupted. "That was one masterpiece."

"And Otto is now driving him down to Jersey to seek us at the home of the elusive Mr. Thorp," I went on, "so it behooves us to get ourselves out of here as soon as possible."

"Do I go first?" Noel said. "It lacks but a few minutes of the time Uncle Dicky said."

"You may have to," I returned, "but if possible I would like to have us all go together. It's better for the avoidance of comment."

"That's true," they both agreed. "I'll just check up on the trains," I told them. "I want to be sure that we get the train at the right time from that Jersey town. Then if your father has any detectives watching the terminal at this end, our arrival will be convincing."

"But," Mary said, "there's no reason, is there, why we can't get down now to some place near that Jersey station from which we intend to come in? It's a million to one nobody will lamp us down there, and we can have some lunch at some quiet little place while we're waiting."

"That's a very good suggestion, Mary," I said after a second's consideration. "So, if you both are ready, and I know you are, have them bring up the bill, Noel, and call us a taxi. Then, after we get well away from the hotel, you can pretend to change your mind, and take another taxi to that place where your uncle has arranged to have you met by the operative with the red ribbon in his button hole who will drive you out to the farm."

"That sounds good to me," Mary said. "Let's get busy, Noel."

"I'll telephone from the other room," Noel said, and when he had gone, Mary came up to me, and putting her hands on my shoulders, looked deep into my eyes as Noel came back into the room. "All set!" he announced. "The bill will be right up, and the taxi is ordered. Now for one last thing. How am I going to let you know when I arrive at the farm. I shall want to know that you're back at the hotel, but —I suppose it won't be safe to telephone there, will it?"

It is a bad practice to feed rhododendrons with commercial fertilizers. Some mistaken enthusiasts even go so far as to apply lime. This, of course, is the greatest mistake that could be made, because rhododendrons, like azaleas and mountain laurel, have a hearty dislike for lime and will not thrive in limestone soil. When preparing the ground for rhododendrons, use decayed oak leaves as a mulch on the surface. When used in this way they should be kept two or three inches deep over the beds the year around, and no digging should be done among the roots. Decayed leaves are probably the best mulch of all.

Newspaper Saga.

The final showing of "Off the Record," starring Pat O'Brien and Joan Blondell, will be presented, at the Ohio tomorrow when the two stars go through their paces in another lively, if not very authentic story of newspaper gals and boys. It's a story about a girl who wants to adopt a "little tough guy" and has to marry her boy friend and colleague in order to do it.

Spy Expose.

In the double bill of feature pictures being shown at the Madison, Ralph Bellamy and Fay Wray are co-starred in the thrilling story of a spy ring, "Smashing a Spy Ring." Three clues possessed by fellow operatives of Warren Hull, murdered G-Man, lead to the discovery of a spy ring and the capture of its leaders. The other picture is "The Arizona Wildcat" with Jane Withers and Leo Carrillo.

Opens Tomorrow.

Opening tomorrow for a two-day run at the Majestic is the star-sprinkled picture "Hollywood Hotel" with Dick Powell, Rosemary Lane, Hugh Herbert, Glenda Farrell and Lola Lane. The story is all about the mix-up which occurs when a small town boy goes to Hollywood. The second feature is "Lawless Valley," starring George O'Brien.

Silly Citizen.

That man of silly citizen fame, Joe Penner, is featured in the double-bill offering at the Park in "Mr. Doodle Kicks Off," a rollicking story of football and campus capers. The other picture is "Mad About Music," starring that little songstress, Deanna Durbin, with Herbert Marshall and Gail Patrick. Deanna, as the concealed daughter of a movie star, adopts herself a father.

Pantomime Artists.

Those two artists of pantomime and ludicrous situations are reappearing in Mansfield at the Ritz in the movie "Swiss Miss." Laurel and Hardy are in Switzerland celebrating their prosperity when a composer comes to their tiny inn to write an opera. Delightful nonsense is the result. The second picture at the Ritz is "Under Strange Flags" with Tom Keene. It's the story of the revolution, Pancho Villa and Mexico.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

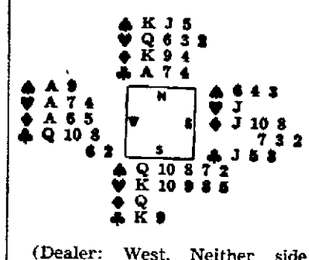
"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T PUT IT TO BED

Who doesn't hate to "go to bed" with an ace? That is likely to happen to any player who doesn't keep his eyes open, and of course to some who do.

Your aces are in particular danger whenever the declarer seems to have a good trump suit and set-up side suit, so that he is pretty sure to run a fair-sized string of consecutive tricks.

He may discard the losers in a suit which contains your ace, or he may render it worthless by means of a squeeze.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West's 1-Club opener here was passed around to South, who overcalled with 1-Spade. North bid 1-No trump South 4-Hearts. Having the trumps stopped with the A, West decided to try for a spade ruff, so led the spade A and followed with the 9 to the K. The heart 2, J, K and A formed the third trick, and West was now at his crisis.

Seeing no sure way to put his partner in the lead, since the club A was in a dummy, a far-thinking player would have noted the danger of being squeezed out of his diamond A. Since the game was duplicate, the taking of that ace might have meant the difference between a good and a bad score. But West tried to get his partner in by leading the club 6. Dummy ducked, East played the J and the K won. Next came seven consecutive major suit tricks. When the last trump was played, South also had a club and a diamond, and the dummy had the diamond K and club A-7. West did not like to make the diamond good by tossing off his A, so discarded the 10 from the club Q-10. Declarer then shed the diamond K from dummy, dropped the club Q with the A and cashed the club 7 for an overtrick and a fine score.

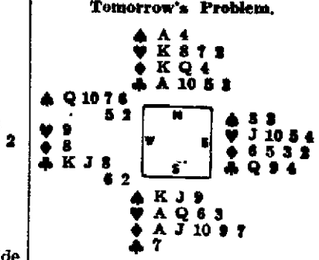
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

If West's interference bidding indicates a holding of six spades and five clubs, how should South play for 7-No trump against a lead of the spade 6?

FAN HANDBAGS

Evening handbags grow more and more frivolous with every passing week. Among the newest ones are those of ostrich feathers which look like a fan. They come in all evening colors but the very bright ones used with black or white evening gowns are particularly effective.

Sprinkle cocoa stains on table linen with borax and soak in cold water. This will remove the stains.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Jan. 27.

It seems, judging by the astral influences, as though this day might find social, domestic, artistic or sentimental matters paramount. This may result in neglect or entanglement in business interests. In the latter there might be a difficulty or involvement concerning a writing, contract or document. Read all such carfully and be watchful in all correspondence. Much gayety and pleasure are signalized in the private life.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of much joy and gratification in their personal lives, with social, romantic, domestic or cultural functions demanding paramount attention to the neglect of business. In this much care is enjoined regarding letters, contracts or documents, since trouble is portended in this domain.

A child born on this day will be socially or culturally endowed to attract success and much happiness in public life, where its ambitions seem to lie. It would not be amiss to give it early ideals as to integrity and stern probity, since a too clever use of tongue or pen might involve it in misunderstandings.

A grilled cheese waffle may be made by sprinkling half a cup of grated cheese over batter placed in the waffle iron. Top it with thin slices of fresh tomatoes which have been dipped in melted butter.

Are You Weak, Pale?

IF you are weak, pale, and feel "dragged out," it is your duty to yourself and to your family to build yourself up. An excellent tonic to take is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It stimulates the appetite and increases the flow of gastric juice, thus aiding digestion, and so helps to strengthen you. Mrs. Cora Reasor, 743 L. W. Soon my appetite was increasing and I was beginning to improve. I took several bottles of this tonic and gained daily." Buy it in liquid or tablets from your druggist today.
